

Local History Manuscript Collection

The Heritage Room Local History Manuscript Collection was one of the first projects of the founders of the Heritage Room. The creation of the Heritage Room was inspired by the interest in history generated by the approaching Bicentennial. Northeast Tarrant County local history societies and Tarrant County history enthusiasts approached officials of the Northeast Campus with the idea of establishing a center on the campus for the collection and preservation of documents and artifacts relating to Tarrant County history – specifically to the history of Northeast Tarrant County. The Hurst Bicentennial Committee adopted the creation of this local history museum as one of its projects. Duane Gage, a history instructor on the Northeast Campus, was appointed Chair of a committee to pursue the collection of local history records. Space for the museum was created as part of the renovation of the Northeast Campus Learning Resource Center, and the Heritage Room opened in 1975.

Provenance

The materials in the Heritage Room Manuscript Collection are the property of the Tarrant County College District. These materials cannot be reproduced without permission. This collection is available to researchers by appointment. Please contact the TCCD Archives.

Scope and Description

The Local History Manuscript Collection consist approximately 2,500 documents, manuscripts, genealogies, family histories, oral histories, and miscellaneous records relating to the institutions, businesses and communities of Tarrant County and Northeast Tarrant County in particular. This collection was created under the direction of Duane Gage. Duane Gage collected hundreds of documents relating to local history. The manuscript collection includes hundreds of student papers. Gage assigned his students research projects on local and family history. Many of these papers were selected to be placed in the Heritage Room local history manuscript collection. These papers could involve a significant historical event in Tarrant County, the history of a local business or institution, a biographical sketch or an oral history interview. Many include photographs. Thus Gage provided history students with an opportunity to work with primary source material, and in the course of their research contribute to building the collection. The Northeast Historical Society and the Mid-Cities Genealogical Society made significant contributions to this collection. Lenora Rolla, Vada Johnson and other founding members of the Tarrant County Black Historical and Genealogical Society contributed material on local African American history.
